

Esteban Gershanik

Dr. Esteban Gershanik is a member of the GIVE mHealth Program Advisory Board. He is an Instructor at Harvard Medical School and the Head of the Medicine Floor at Brigham & Women's Hospital. He is a medicine / pediatrics doctor in Boston, Massachusetts and is affiliated with multiple hospitals in the area, including the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. He has previous experience working in international underserved populations through the nonprofit group Global Healing in Honduras and led efforts during Hurricane Katrina in disaster management/emergency preparedness through the Louisiana Department of Health and Hospitals and Office of Public Health.

Dr. Gershanik participated in a joint Harvard-MIT Biomedical Informatics Fellowship sponsored by the National Library of Medicine and has current projects focusing on the integration of clinical decision support tools in healthcare delivery. While continuing clinical research, his focus has been how the newest technologies can be integrated into the healthcare delivery system in order to optimize care. He received his Master's in Public Health degree focused on Health Systems Management from Tulane University. He received his medical degree from Tulane University School of Medicine and has been in practice between 11-20 years.

